HOBO TOURS 1917

CORPORAL SMITH

There wasn't a sound but for a lost little cricket that had stumbled out on to the upper lip of Trench #3 and I nudged the corporal but he didn't wake.

Lucky for him that it was that I had found him instead of the Captain as sleeping on watch was a most serious offence if caught. I nudged and then shook him hard but still he didn't wake and it was then that I realized that he was dead.

Emil's

CORPORAL SMITH

After even a short while here in these barren killing fields, if you don't learn to embrace death as a constant, smelly companion; you will be dead long before your time much as the corporal now was.

Upon realizing he was dead, I ducked without feeling any need to take a look further about and crawled on my belly almost all the way back to our dugouts and sorted through his stuff before anyone else.

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

CORPORAL SMITH

I know that seems cruel but, he was already dead and if I didn't then the porters would take anything of value as their trophy tip before dropping his body over at the growing, makeshift regiment cemetery...

"Can't take it with ya!"

Besides, I am sure that he would much prefer to have his valuables go to his bunkmates instead of greedy, unknown strangers.

Emil's

CORPORAL SMITH

Much to my dismay, someone had beat me to all the good stuff (tobacco, cheap homemade whiskey that we trade bullets to the local French Farmers for, money or upcoming liberty passes) and I was left to stash his letters and fotos into a shoe box that I would drop at the unit station in the morning so they can send to home to his heartbroken family. I see that he had a wife and several children from his collected fotos.

A MIDDLE PATH?

According to our long-lost, great ex-guru James...the past is but a barren, empty graveyard where nothing but weeds can grow and that tomorrow has not been created as you have yet decided to plant the seeds for the future to be able to boom, today ...

It is far harder from the Common Man as we were all successfully raised by a mistaken "Been there...Done that " Mantra that effectively chains us in that graveyard of all

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

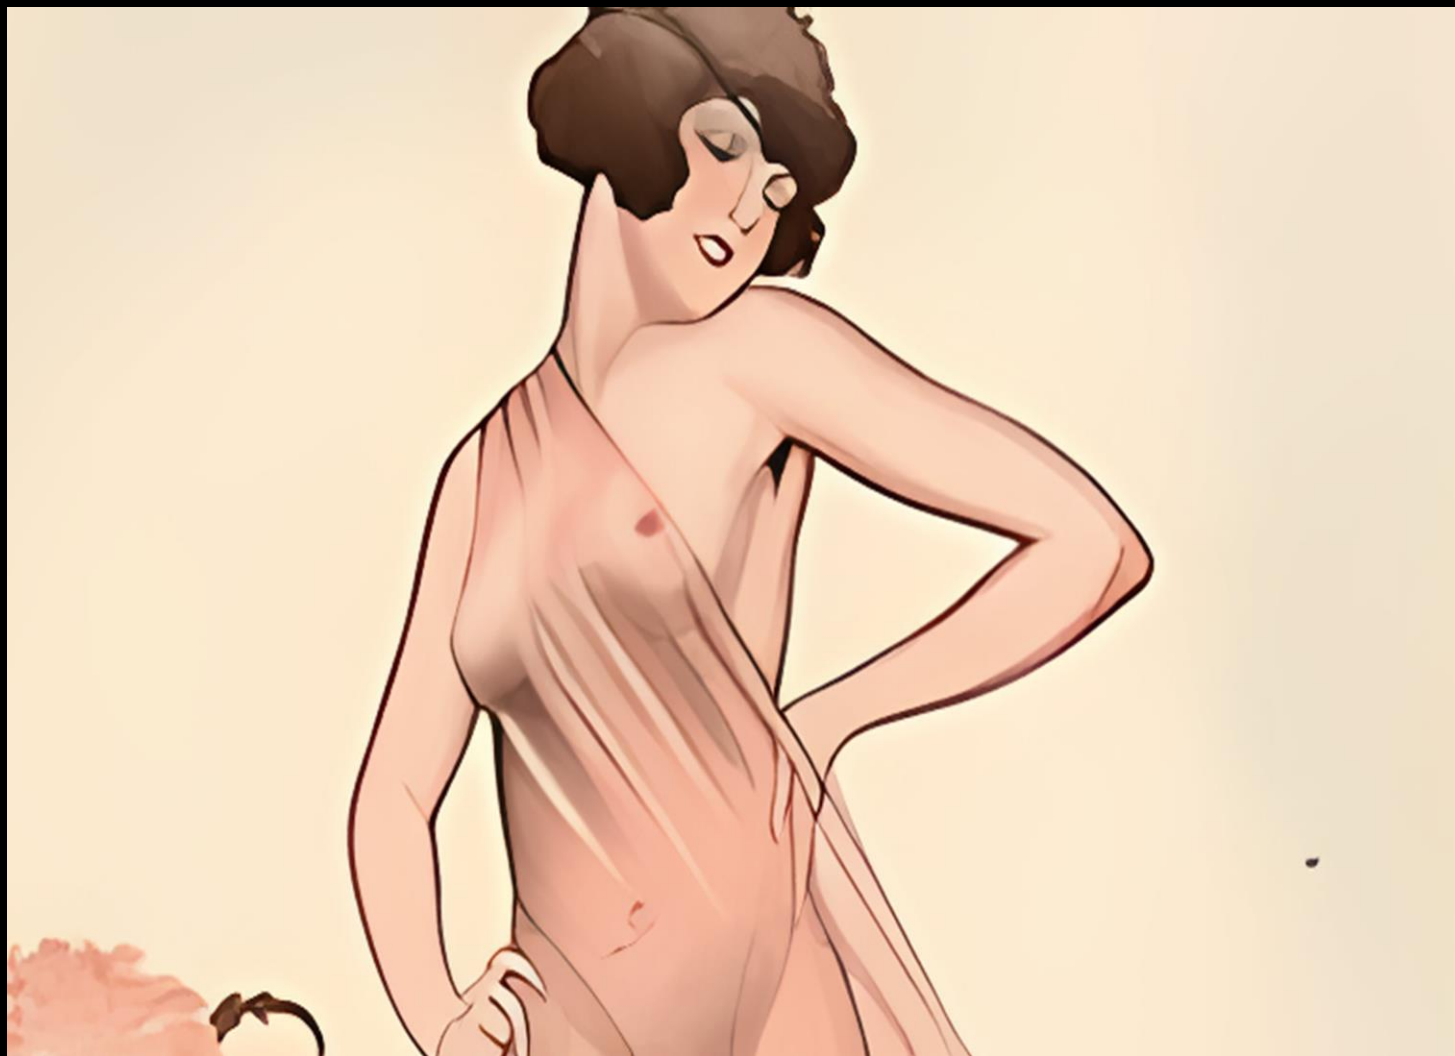

HOBO TOURS 1917

A MIDDLE PATH?

our past misdeeds, many mistakes and all the while, the Devil does smile...

So, my friend, there is far more truth to what you said than most people would imagine...thanks for posting!!!

And, such was the answer that Seine telexed me in regards to this new creation and it further nailed shut the possibility of this project ever seeing the light of even a cloudy, gloomy day.

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

A MIDDLE PATH?

While most true beliefs of "I bought a condo here in the graveyard of possibility" mantra who have been heavily betting on the line that this project was death and you can stick a dull fork into it but, who still wanted points on their sure thing bet; I stood the line and continued late into the night planting seeds for this to bloom with the arrival of yet another red sun of Krypton dawn.
I do agree with Seine's conclusion(s) that we

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

have beaten this dog of the original industrial war to death with more than a few previous books that dripped blood-red and went far beyond your interest to read further.

Let me submit your honor, "Sir...that this is an issue that can never be left to gather dust on the back shelves of the near abandoned, old analog book section of the library..."

Again, I have to be truthful (transparent) that my oracle call for "living for the

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

moment" is (in part) responsible for the this great debacle of all the hundreds (thousands) of wars that flowed out of the war that we were told was being fought to end all war.

By heeding my urgent cry for living in the moment (in reality without much thought) we have of thrown "we have been there and done that" to the dusty curb which blurred the horrors that war brought and excluded the reality of the next 100-year of carnage

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

that it inspired from our collect short term memory as we (now) condition ourselves to live in the moment without thought that the seeds we are planting are not flowers but mere weeds.

"Damned if you do and damned if you don't!"

Is that the takeaway?

In "ying-yang" there are no shades of gray but only stark, the colors of black or white...no Kodachrome here, my friends!

In our revised wisdom of past, present, future
there can not be any room for a middle ground...you are either with us or you are against us and these days that can be fraught with many dangers on its own.
As you might start to tell (if you made it this far) that in this modern age there is no longer breathing space for anyone to go off on their own, to actively form much less express their opinion(s) without the collectiveness of polite society raining fire and brimstone down upon your head, branding you with the hot iron of "cancel" and casting you out in the wilderness outside the Great Eastern Gates of Eden.

Trust me! I have been there and done that!

Yet, I am torn in that I do believe in the teachings of our great, ex-guru James while, I must admit that there are drawbacks and miscalculations of human nature that

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

(maybe) he failed to consider as he strived to take us into a higher level of magnetic, harmony frequency (a better new world) and that I now fear (might) lead us to the peace and harmony that the Great War gave us in terms of beautiful, quiet grave yards with hundreds-of-thousands (millions) of resident testimonials to our failure to take into consideration that there were brought to these great collecting points by a collective failure to learn from the past, they died in their present and thus, they had no future...adhering to the consideration of the "been there...done that!" mantra might have made a difference but we were all caught up in living for the moment.

Who knows?

Still, I agree that (in practical sense) our past experience(s) do tank, chain us and prevent us from taking chances of opportunities that

Emil's

HOBO TOURS 1917

express ourselves in the present...it all comes down to fear of taking a risk.

Risk Management has been the Devil's most successful tool in controlling humanity all the way back to the dawn of the first humans.

"Can't do that! It's too risky!"

Even the least known or remember prophets and sages will openingly confess in the private of mumbled conversation conducted with sidebars and behind locked parlor doors; they

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

A MIDDLE PATH?

will freely admit to the universally know concept that without the introduction of risk there can be no new opportunity to advance civilization and the obsessed consideration of the risk factor(s) has lied to bankruptcy and the collapse of history's greatest societies. The main component in risk management's core is "FEAR!"

The Great FDR once explained over the cracking wireless radios in the 1930's to a nation living in the economic wasteland (graveyard) of economic fear that fear was our greatest enemy and by overcoming fear the nation would transcend into a better world where people embraced and worked (collectively) towards seeing new opportunity becoming the new standard norm(s).

OK...Too much...Right???

I see that the few of you who actually stuck around do get it.

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBOTOURS 1917

"Damned if you do...Damned if you don't!"
As any old barkeep worth his salt will always say:

"Pick ya Poison, Bubba!"

In respect of your advance knowledge of these "down this steep rabbit hole" argument(s) that I have been unsuccessfully attempting to convey and (more so) out of fear that even the most fearless of my diehard readers will abandon me on this

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

HOBO TOURS 1917

A MIDDLE PATH?

argument; I will stop here in my narrative of what might turn out to be a long, pointless book that would change not a mind nor opinion other than to the fact that you need never buy it!

Got it! I'm disappointed but I am OK!
Let me conclude by agreeing with the cooler heads amongst you that there MUST be a middle path where all things are considered (NO! Not like NPR! As these days they don't do that any more as their corporate mantra echoes back to Georgie Bushee's "Ya either with us or you need to go listen to Fox News!"), weighed and without fear we can move forward into that brave new world like FDR promised but was unable to deliver. With this project that middle path was that they liked the fotos but, where less so happy with my continued "lone prophet out in the wilderness" themes and I agreed to shut up,

Emil's
HOBO TOURS 1917

Emil's
HOBBO TOURS 1917

take my advance check and that they would publish this project as a cool picture book instead of a manifesto call to arms again the waning days of the collapsing great social reset...

AND, SO IT WENT!
